Local health organizations partners with ASU West to offer healing through song

Phoenix, Ariz. - Sistas of AZ and Black Nurses, in cooperation with Arizona State University West Women's Resource Center, will present Pray for a Cure Gospel Fest 2008 to be held April 13 at ASU West.

"We decided to bring an event of this type to Valley residents to educate, pray and support those affected by breast cancer," said Sistas founder Tina Brown of the event. "I'm excited about expanding our outreach in this way...in hopes it will reach more people."

In an effort to host a diverse mix of gospel voices, Sistas of AZ will be holding auditions from 6 to 8 p.m. Jan. 30 and 31 at the ASU West University Center Building (UCB), Room 241, 4701 W. Thunderbird Road in Phoenix. All local singers, dancers, choirs and various gospel genre artists and performers are encouraged to participate.

Pray for a Cure is a year-long campaign designed to raise awareness about breast cancer in our communities.
